WHERE LEARNING HAPPENS NATURALLY

Discover a 52-hectare rare nature reserve just a short distance from Manila. The James Yen Center, named after IIRR founder Dr. Y.C. James Yen, is located on a campus fenced in by a greenbelt mini-forest. The center provides complete training facilities conducive to reflection, learning, and recreation. Come and experience a different kind of learning and living environment.

WHERE KNOWLEDGE IS FOR SHARING

The center has crop, tree and livestock learning and demonstration sites, featuring sustainable livelihood models supporting IIRR's efforts to end poverty.

WHERE EDUCATION TRANSFORMS LIVES

For conferences and training solutions, the Yen Center offers 3 function halls equipped with sound systems, projector screens, wi-fi access, work desks and chairs, a complete facility conducive to effective training.

The James Yen Center serves as the IRR headquarters and remains the ideal training ground for international and local development practitioners.

WHERE ROOMS OFFER COMFORT AND SERENITY

Modestly designed to complement a natural landscape, all 44 guest rooms can accommodate about 130 people on triple-sharing basis.

Rooms are furnished with single beds, private shower and toilet, a study table, air-conditioning, and wi-fi access. For larger groups, 20 dorm type rooms and 5 furnished cottages are also available.

WHERE CUISINES ARE REMINISCENT OF HOME

From local favorites to international cuisines, Yen Center's dining services bring back the flavors of home. Our specialties include recipes using vegetables from our garden and campus farms.
